

An Introduction to NLP (Neuro-Linguistic Programming) and its Applications

2010 - 2011

"We invite you to this 1-day Introduction that will give you a taste of NLP and its potential for getting results and bringing about change. We have been working in organisations and running training programmes for 20 years and know of no other set of tools and skills that have such effective and widespread applicability".

Marie Faire & Paul King
(Founders of The Beyond Partnership Ltd)

NLP has been created from studying and modeling what successful people do and identifying the 'differences that makes the difference' in their performance compared to other people. NLP is a set of tools and a methodology for developing personal and professional capacity in leadership, communication, influence, coaching and the management of self and others.

During the day we will present

- An overview of NLP,
- An insight into some of the key NLP concepts
 - Successful Outcome Setting
 - Dealing with "Difficult" People
 - Motivating, Inspiring and Influencing Others
- Examples of personal and organisational applications

Our public trainings are highly regarded. Participants come from the private sector and not-for-profit organisations including the NHS, public and voluntary sectors. They include: Chief Executives, Senior Managers, HR Professionals and Management Consultants.

Our approach and skills tends to attract people who are prepared to go beyond the norm, who are willing to push the boundaries of possibility for themselves and others and who know 'there is another way' to operate in organisations which is more effective in getting results through people.

The day will be informal. As well as input from us, there will be the opportunity for you to practise applying some of the techniques and models and plenty of time for your questions and for discussion.
